Kohlen & Patton attorneys practice in the area of government relations, both on behalf of our clients, and as special legislative and administrative counsel for others. Our services in this area include drafting legislation and serving as a legislative consultant at the local, state and federal levels. In addition to legislative activities, we work with the executive branches of government at all levels in both the promulgation and interpretation of regulations. Industries served by our attorneys include asbestos, tobacco, food and beverage, brewery, chemicals, and agricultural products.

K&P attorneys have worked with foreign governments on behalf of clients in connection with building industrial installations in third world countries, assisting in writing enabling legislation, and arranging financing with the World Bank, Overseas Private Investment Company, and export assistance agencies of developed countries.

We have also advised clients on export licensing under governmental regulations, compliance with the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, and administrative exceptions to export license restrictions.
